SPOTLIGHT // FAMILY MINISTRY

When you think about Family Ministry at Signal Pres, you probably go first to:

1) The unique ministries that partner with kids at different ages and stages—the coordinated way we do PreK, Kids, and Student Ministry and Embrace for all students as part of the “family” here at Signal Pres. It’s that consistent community, loving leadership, prayer and planning that goes into loving both them and their neighbor. And then -

2) The church family in which we all find a home. Brothers and sisters of Christ together—gathering together, being equipped for the work of being the faithful presence of Jesus’ love in all the places God has for us. It’s all those ways we call each other to a life of sacrificial love. But you might not think about -

3) Your own family. The way you as parents, or grandparents, or significant adults lovingly lead those in your own family. Or how you minister to your own kids, siblings, spouses, and extended families. This winter, one of our family ministry teams has been working on a project to help parents be equipped to disciple their own kids and students, connect to each other for encouragement and prayer, and prioritize their own growth in Christ. We’re having the best time and can’t wait to introduce these ideas to you this spring and release them in time for summer.

If you have ideas on these or thoughts on how we can minister to families better, we are all ears! Being a parent these days can be lonely, isolating, exhausting, sorrowful ... and yes, punctured by moments of joy or beauty. We are praying for you in the midst of all the mess. I (Andy Cornett) would love to meet up with you or connect you with any of our staff or leaders. Grace and peace!
